Preface:

You're so special, so important. You're extremely conscious and sensitive of your environment, that's why this book is especially made for you to satisfy your curiosity. With more challenging activities and new world to explore, you will discover many things that will help you and understand the amazing things happening to you and your environment.

With the basic skills you have acquired in Journey through Science (Kinder) such as naming, describing, grouping, identifying, comparing and manipulating, we hope that the learning experiences planned in this book develop in you an acquiring and imaginative mind, and enhance your interest in the why's and how's of natural happenings in your everyday life.

We also hope that through this book, you will learn to live at your best, do the best, think of the best, because you are best of God's creation.
